Hongkong, August 20th, 1889.

One means by which the average common sense of Hongkong might be brought to bear on the control of the main drainage and other public works of the colony has been unaccountably neglected. By the Standing large plant of machinery specially constructed Orders and Rules of the Legislative Council adopted on the 10th April, 1884, it was prowided that "at the opening of every session" certain Standing Committees should be appointed, including a Public Works Committee consisting of the Surveyor-General believe, Counsel will no longer appear with their (Chairman) and four other members. Soon after Sir William Des Voux arrived in the seems to prefer to protect himself by ons. Colony he announced that he did not intend to hold regular sessions of the Council; consequently the session never commences and the committees provided for in the Standing Orders are never appointed. The Rules seem, indeed, to be treated in the most cavalier manner by the Government and are only invoked when it is desired to prevent an unofficial member speaking. For this state of things the unofficial members themselves must be held largely responsible. There seems to be a want of fighting power amongst The Hon. P. RYBIE sometimes tries a bout with the Government, but he has grown clumsy in debate and his play the following programme at the Officers' aledge hammer blows generally miss the mark. It is the duty of the unofficial members, we take it, not only to submit to the Valse Standing Orders themselves, but to insistthat they shall also be observed on the official side. When the Council again meets afte the summer recess they ought in the public interest to insist upon the appointment of the Public Works Committee. It is true that when the Committee was in existence it did very little good, but this, too, was largely the Palace at Peking which was destroyed by fire on fault of the unofficial members themselves. The duties of the Committee are not defined in any way, and if the members were applied to pro forma to sanction any proposed public work they were not asked to exercise says, chiefly with England, and he hase ded the my control over its execution. But there is no reason why they should consent to let this order of things continue. When the next Committee is appointed one of the firs things to which it should address itself is the All these statements are obvious inventions. preparation of a set of rules as to its duties and method of procedure, which should be submitted to the Legislative Coupcil for approval in order to give them validi

The appointment of such a Committee Public Works department, but it would not necessarily imply disparagement of or any want of confidence in the prefessional qualifications of the Surveyor-General and his assistante. TheCommittee would exercise only a general control and would not interfere with details. For instance, when questions have been asked in Council as to why certain public works already decided on were not being carried out the reply has been that the Department was fully occupied with other things. The Pub. lig Works Committee under such circumstances would be able to decide, or at least ceeded with first and which held over. How successfully this idea has been put into form a visit to the Bank clearly shows. Mr. Marten, under whose personal superintendence and direction the work has been carried out, is certainly to be congratulated on the result. The style and fluish in every part are unexceptionable. Complete harmony in Baulanger guilty of plotting against the ockouring prevails throughout the building, and safety of the state. whatever part is inspected nothing distasteful to an artistic eye appears. The principal office at the entrance is a most creditable piece of detorative work while the corridor on the second floor and the dining, drawing, and billiard rooms are all conceived and carried out in the same excellent taste. A satisfactory, perhaps the most satisfactory, point in respect of this the work is executed. Having been p mormed of the cost of decorating the whole of the immense building, we are bound to admit that, considering the style of the work, it is extremely, not to say surprisingly, small.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS. Sin,-In your leader of this morning you re for to the remarks which the chairman calledon me to make at last Friday's meeting. I went simply to listen, and they were quite impromptu. I would therefore crave indulgence for this explanation.

If therefore the rain is the only water supp npon which the drains depend any system which reludes the rain must needs be defective. The separato system works well where a suitable sup ply of thirty-five gallons a head is provided for the inhabitants, the whole of which passes into small pipes; but at the Peak the domestic consumption does not amount to much more than one tenth of this. The sewage therefore. even the chance of occasional cleansing by storm waters. When an abundant supply of water is Grand provided in every house the semirate system of small pipes will work, but not till then But will not the advent of a full supply of water render the small nines needless? The sewage of Hongkong when largely diluted, will be comparatively harmless, and there is the orux of the whole matter. The separate system is designed to meet a condition of things which has no existence among us. It is intended by it to exclude excreta from the main drainage also to concentrate the seware in those cases where it is used for agricultural purposes. This has no application to Hongkong. Here all exoreta is removed by hand carriage, except two or three isolated cases, in which, for the convenience of the few, but to the injury of the many, water-closets are still telerated contrary to law. The separate system of drainage is an appanage of the system of water-closets. It is calculated to lead to their multiplication in the colony, and to check and interfere with the system of hand carriage—a practice admirably adapted to the conditions of life in the tropics, and universally followed in the East. There can be no doubt whatever that the extengive introduction of any other system would be therefore to be haped that, the committee will urge upon His Excellency the Governor not 283 to sanction any further extension of the separate system of drainage. That portion which has been already Isid upon the higher levels will work better when the water supply is increased, if it does not become imperforate during the coming winter, when water will probably cost 10 cents per bucket We may hope, however, that this state of things will not last long or it would be far better to rely upon atmospheric influences, and have no main drains at all. Attention was called at the mark yesterday, has now sixteen feet of water meeting to the sites for impounding reservoirs over it at low water. The earth behind the the several sites might be insufficient to suply the last half of the winter, and for this period recourse must probably be had to mechanical agency, and possibly electric power, but it would

Not a moment, however is to be lost, if we are to store next sum mer's rain. In conclusion may I venture as a very old resident, and one taking a lively interest in the welfare of the colony, to express the hope that the Committee and the Sanitary Board will come consideration of this most important subith candid and unbiased minds, deprecating contention and party spirit with all hasty and inconsiderate language, remembering that there is not one amongst us who has not very

GREAT DAMAGE TO PROPERTY.

The Shanghai Mercury of the 14th inst.

Another misfortune has fallen upon the Dook at Tung-ka-doo. To-day the whole of the Southern bunding, wharf, etc., lies at the bottom of the Whang-poo, with much other valuable pro-The general principles of water supply and perty; the river having last night proved too drainage would appear simple enough, but their strong for the new and the old work, and washsuccessful application to an infinite variety of ed away about a hundred and fifty feet of piling. differing circumstances requires all the skill of wharf and earth, with the engine, shears and the accomplished engineer. Of this at the present everything thereon. The catastrophe, -for it is time we fortunately have no lack. With all due nothing short of such, occurred last night at deference therefore to professional opinion. I about a quarter past nine, and it is almost make these remarks in the spirit of your state. The sole topic of conversation in the setment that "we want the average common sense | tlement to-day. The collapse will certainly of Hongkong brought directly to bear on the greatly complicate future legal proceedings drainage question in this colony." It was well and, after visiting the scene this morning, it is comarked by Mr. Mackintosh, the chairman of our opinion that unless very prompt steps are the meeting, that drainage and water supply taken, and immensely strong works executed at were closely connected. May it not be truly as. once, the force of the river will shortly remove serted that no water supply can exist without all cause of contention between the parties to drainage, and that no modern scientific system of the suit. Indeed, to-day, the place looks as if covered drainage can exist without water supply? an earthqua e or some great natural convulsion had occurred there, and one can hardly realize that the destruction is the result of the action of the river. Not a foot of the southern bunding. from the dock entrance to the end of the property, remains standing; the earth is full of great fissures and cracks, where it has not gone bodily into the swift current. Great timbers, some of I them nearly three feet in diameter, lie splintered like matchwood; the whole hundred and fifty feet concentrated, the pipes are fouled, and have not of frontage is piled up wit wreekage, which projects sixty or seventy feet into the river, and the great piles, of forty-five feet in length, are floating about in all directions or sticking with the tapering bottoms nowards. It is the most audden collapse of works that has ever occurred in Shanghai and shows after all what a weak power is engineering skill when opposed by such a natural force as even the Whaurpoo River. From the statement of Mr. Ocklors, who lives at the dock, it appears that the collapse occurred about 9.15 last night, at which time the tide was running obb. He said that he retired to rost at about half-past eight, and about three-quarters of an hour after he was startled by a noise like a gunshot. The noise was repeated in a few seconds. and he then went out on a verandah to see what was the matter. He at first thought it was an earthquake, for the hous- shook and the windows rattled violently." Just as he reached the verandah he saw the south bunding slowly moving into the river, while the great shears was quiverng and shaking as if some giant power was shovint it in a northerly direction. In a few seconds it went over with an awful crash, and one of the legs, of Oregon pine and about three feet in diameter, coming against a number of piles that were left standing after the earth had fallen away. was splintered and broken right across about attended with the most disastrons results. It is ten feet from the bottom. He rushed down atairs and in less than three minutes the whole of the bunding had gone clean into the river, the tie rods anapping like threads, and the 45 feet piles affording no more support to the earthwork behind than if they were so many reeds. He thought the whole dock was going to collapse, and his first thoughts were for the sailing ship Cape City, which was inside under repairs; but the dock head and the entrance stood firm. About thirty-five of the new piles put down by Mr. alerrison have disappeared, and what was dry land, and several feet above high water-

which exist between Mountain Lodge and the sheeting has gone clean away for about fifty feet Hon, P. Ryrie's house. An ornamental lake in breadth, by over a hundred and forty long. might be constructed at both these places, and and it seems to have gone right out into several embankments at different points in the the middle of the river. Mr. Oeklers says that nullah. The level of the lake at Mr. Ryrie's would the bank was at first straight up and down and be a little low, but the water could easily be numbed | quite clean cut, when the flood tide came up, it up one hundred feet. The supply of water dur- became all jagged and irregularly broken. All ng storms is immense, but the storage capacity the tie-rods are broken, while even some of the piles to which they were fastened have gone into the river with the rest of the works. On the bund was a small boiler and engine about 6 tons weight, and a mud-digger. These went with the general ruin into the river, and despite that search soundings were made for them last night and this morning, no trace of them has been found. It is thought that they have gone for out into the river, which here shelves very steeply and is of great depth. Alongside the remains of the shears lies a pile-driver, fifty feet in length, which stood ten feet from the staging on what was supposed to be solid ground, but which has given way for many feet further in. Fifteen feet further in than the earth that has already gone, there are numerous deep cracks and hollows, which go two feet inside the new bulkhead that Mr. Morrison constructed. Indeed it would seem that had it not been for this bulkhead the dock would have burst there and then, but it stood the strain apparently without moving The cracks in the ground are not all new, according to Mr. Ocklers, who said that he pointed them out to Mr. Morrison some time ago, as an indication that the bund was giving way, but that gentleman thought they were of no o nsequence. About twenty feet from the land slip stand two spare boilers, belonging to the China Merchants and which came out for the Fungshun, and a lot of other heavy bits of machinery, but none of these stirred. To-day, the timbers, piles, sheathind, etc., of the south side of the entrance were standing without any support, the earth behind it, to within a short distance of the chase piles, having entirely disappeared and the flood tide now strikes this weakened structure with great force as it sweeps along. Already it shows signs of the strain in places, and the danger of its being carried away looks Mesers. Earnham and Co. on the afternoon of limminent. The dock itself is all right so far, but the caisson seems to be jambed somewhat in the chase piles, and Mr. Ockiers, though he thinks he will have no difficulty in getting the caisson affost, fears that it will not go back into its place again because of sharged with purchasing a woman named Li ber of visitors, and the steamer, which is built of the pressure on the lower part of the chase piles.
